“ Before the storm I will not quail,
From heights or depths I will not shrink,
Yet, gentle Lord, should courage fail
Stretch forth Thy hand before I sink.”

—The late Father BRIDGETT, C.S.S.R.
(Written on his death-bed.)

PREFACE TO THE FOURTH EDITION.

IN the present month this compilation attains its majority, for it was in June, 1878, that the lists bearing the title of "Rome's Recruits" first appeared in the columns of the Whitehall Review.

Since that date, and especially since that of the edition of 1892, the constant flow of conversions to Holy Church (the real old English Church, the Church that alone could be recognised by an Augustine, a Bede, a Dunstan, an à Becket or a Langton, could they but visit this land of 300 sects), and lastly the present acute crisis which is taking place in our midst in religious matters, have impelled me to issue a new and greatly enlarged edition of Converts to Rome.

Having been repeatedly asked how I became connected with this publication, I deem this a fitting occasion to satisfy the legitimate curiosity of my kind correspondents. While at college I took a keen interest in the return of England to the Old Faith, and I am pleased to admit that that feeling was fostered in me by my old tutor, the late Rev. E. G.

Kirwan Browne, a convert and author of the Annals of the Tractarian Movement. I can still picture the dear old man with his snow-white locks and gentle voice, and better still can I remember how he often discoursed to us—in a style peculiarly his own—on the stirring episodes of that period when the Church of England as by law established had that shock which a great statesman has so graphically depicted.

It will not be surprising then to my readers to imagine that, when the then editor of the Whitehall Review invited me to superintend the production of the present work in pamphlet form, I eagerly accepted a task which has ever since been to me a labour of love.

During the last twenty years I have been in receipt of thousands of letters from converts in all parts of the world. These letters have deeply impressed me, for they have all been couched in language which suggested that their authors had—as Cardinal Newman said—left the City of Confusion for the Mother of Saints, and had at length obtained a happiness and a peace of soul which they could never have expected here below.

It is often said that you may hurt an Englishman in many ways with impunity, but that he never allows his pecuniary interests and comforts to be assailed. When I scan the list of converts now before me, when I note the names of the many who have been real martyrs for the cause of Truth, I for one cannot acquiesce in the application of such a charge. How many a noble dame of ancient lineage has forsaken home, family and fortune, laid her coronet aside, and assumed the veil in some humble convent? How many an Anglican clergyman has left his snug parsonage and rich living and begun life afresh, and struggled on joyfully to the end of his days on a pittance equivalent to that of Goldsmith's country rector? And more than all, how many have died in those establishments for the poor, rendered necessary by the "Blessed" Reformation, deserted by all dear to them by the ties of kindred, and yet blessing God to the last for having found the True Fold? Many such cases are known to me, and must be familiar to many who read these lines.

Some of us born Catholics, failing to appreciate the possibility of abandoning the religion of one's parents, or remembering only the days of penal laws and intolerance, and priding ourselves on the fact that our ancestors were never traitors to the See of Peter, are apt at times to be cool and distant to converts. This should not be, and we have noble examples set us by our Holy Father Pope Leo XIII. and his Eminence Cardinal Vaughan, who have done and are doing much for the welfare, spiritual and temporal, of our new brethren. The establishment and endowment of the Collegio Beda at Rome, whose alumni are to be converted Anglican clergymen (fourteen are there in residence at the present moment), clearly demonstrate the Holy Father's ardent wish for the conversion of England, and his great affection for this country. The Cardinal Archbishop of Westminster has been no laggard in the same noble cause, if we judge him by his many letters to the Faithful, and the interest he takes in the Converts' Aid Society. The offices of that most excellent institution are at 42 Gerrard Street, Soho, London, W. I should deem it a favour if all those who derive any pleasure from the perusal of my book would kindly send a subscription to the Hon. Secretary, John B. Corney, Esq.

At this point I cannot refrain from alluding to the grand work that is being accomplished by the Rev. Philip Fletcher and Mr. Lister Drummond in connection with the Guild of Our Lady of Ransom for the Conversion of England, of which they are the founders. These gentlemen are working with a zeal only comparable to that which animated the late Father Ignatius Spencer of saintly memory. I have ample evidence to prove that many conversions are due to their untiring efforts.

Last year I had the pleasure of meeting for the first time a young gentleman of an old and distinguished Kentish family. During the course of an interesting conversation he told me that he owed his conversion, some six years previously, to a series of sermons he heard at an Anglican church, given by the Rev. B. W. Maturin ; this, I trust, will be pleasing news to the good Father, and let us hope that he may be with us soon as a true Pastor, working to bring others to the Fold, as are doing the Revv. Fathers Croke Robinson, C. H. Moore, Sydney Smith, S.J., and many other devoted convert priests by their sermons and their beautiful written expositions of the doctrines of the Church of their adoption.

Neither are the laity found wanting when their services are needed from the platform or from the pen. I have only to mention, among others, the names of Messrs. James Britten, K.S.G., W. Vance Packman, Dudley Baxter, Robert Dell, and W. Mowbray to prove my assertion.

I would call special attention to the fact that this list is not official, for I did not apply to nor have had the slightest assistance from any of our Bishops. Neither must I be exuberant in my acknowledgments to our clergy, for to my 500 applications for information I was honoured by thirty replies. The names have been culled from the columns of the Catholic and Protestant papers, or have been supplied to me by the converts themselves or their friends.

I trust the new arrangement may give general satisfaction, and that the statistics, now introduced for the first time, may prove interesting.

I am withholding hundreds of names of relatives of clergymen and of others who wish me to do so for family reasons.

As the number of converts in England now amount to nearly 10,000 per annum, it will be

POSTSCRIPT.

REV. LUKE RIVINGTON, D.D.

JUST as I am revising the last proof-sheets of this work the melancholy intelligence reaches me of the sudden death of one of our most important converts—the Rev. Luke Rivington, D.D. I can never forget the kindly assistance and encouragement he has given me in connection with this production.

Doubtless he has done more than any living English priest, by his learned works and sermons, to bring back his countrymen to the Faith of his forefathers. His loss will be deeply felt, and Holy Church is deprived of a champion by his untimely death.—R.I.P.
